

RIDING ABILITY LEVEL

» LEVEL 1

For newcomers who have never ridden offroad, but are yearning to do so at last. The tours cover simple to medium terrain, although they lack nothing at all of that notorious offroad feeling. The only thing you need is experience of riding a motorcycle. The trails do not include any steep uphill or downhill passages; quite the opposite. Occasional asphalt sections allow the pulse to relax. A little instruction in the art of offroad riding at the beginning of the tour also helps with the jumps.

» LEVEL 2

The intermediate ability level challenges the riders to overcome occasional difficult sections as well. With the somewhat higher speed, these tours are perfectly suited to offroaders who have already gained some experience in rough terrain. However, Sunday riders, who only rarely venture away from the road, but conquer rocky passages with ease, will also feel at home.

» LEVEL 3

Discover your riding, mental and physical limits – this is what the KTM Adventure Tours with the highest difficulty level are best suited to. Participants are taken to their limits and they get to feel how tough offroad riding can actually be. But the balance between riding fun and exhaustion is always maintained. In contrast to the intermediate level, this one contains sections that can only be conquered collectively and with teamwork.
